

Shastina Leonard / Writing Packet
818-691-6981 / Shastina.leonard@gmail.com

TOPICAL JOKES

A new study says people rarely think to remove something as a solution. Instead they say people tend to add something to solve a problem. This explains why some people have so many kids.

Birdwatchers in Maryland have caught a glimpse of a rare bird. People describe the bird as a flying rainbow. Which reminds me, anyone see Richard Simmons lately?

Researchers have found that playing virtual reality games creates an effect where time goes by faster than you think. They call this 'Time compression'. But, most of us call it 'having a day off'.

The FBI says it opens a new investigation into China 'every ten hours'. What a coincidence. I open one every time I don't get a package I ordered.

Scientists have developed AI technology to predict a heart attack. Look, that already exists. It's called McDonalds.

Disney and Sony have reached an agreement on bringing Spider-Man and other blockbuster Sony franchises to Disney Plus. Well, that's good. We don't want them to drop to Disney Minus.

Joan Rivers' NYC penthouse lists for $38 million. Some say that the place is haunted. Nobody thought it was actually her. But, then the ghost made a joke about what everyone was wearing.

New studies show that mammals have the ability to use their intestines for breathing. This is great news. Now we know what our belly button is used for.

A team of French researchers found a deep sea fish that can live for one-hundred years. It also doesn't mature until it's forty-five years old. Which can only mean one thing - it's a millennial.

The 'Conjuring' home is being sold for $1.2 million. The house is one of the most haunted houses in the U.S. Other than the White House.

A recent study finds that 63% of Americans in cities live paycheck to paycheck. That's not a surprise. We also live apartment to apartment.

A lawsuit claims that Johnson & Johnson products cause hair loss. It's true. Look at all the babies.

A Jungle Cruise boat at Disney World sank recently. Don't worry, nobody died. Except the jokes.

John Mayer has a North American tour in 2022 for his album, "Sob Rock". Not sure what Sob Rock is, but it's probably a combination of rocking and crying. You know, like what we all did in 2020.

Astronomers have discovered four nearby exoplanets which will help them learn about Earth's teenage years. For example, it's possible the earth is being bullied by gravity.

A whistleblower says 'Almost no one outside of Facebook knows what happens inside Facebook'. It's probably because they don't have their notifications turned on.

In 1973, a journal 'Chemistry and Life' asked the question "Is the Earth a Large Crystal? Hey, if it is... It's the biggest and most radiant crystal we've ever seen. Except for Billy Crystal.

Clint Eastwood was awarded $6.1 Million in a lawsuit against CBD retailers using his image. He doesn't have a CBD line. But, If he did you could get it "For a Few Dollars More" or a "Fistful of Dollars".

DESK PIECES

Dear Chucky

The host reads letters to the iconic serial killer doll, Chucky, who is giving advice because he needs work during every month other than October. Chucky gives funny, yet horrific virtual advice via Zoom.

Scooter Vision

The host pretends to drive a scooter with a simulation of a short journey on a scooter that the audience can also see. Similar to "desk driving" except using a scooter point of view.

Celebrity Menu

Each week we visit a list of celebrity menus that never made the cut.

For example, Trump's Trufflehut might serve, Build Your Own Burger for a billion dollars, orange whip on a cone, and a HUGE basket O'fries.

Call a Caveman

At any point the host picks up a good-sized rock on their desk and makes a call to a caveman. The caveman responds to questions and thoughts with primitive moans, groans, and grunts offering profoundly simple answers to our modern and complex world.

Will It Freeza?

An Italian pizza maker has a freezer and he puts things in there to see if they will freeze. The audience gets the pleasure of seeing what types of items he has chosen each week and if it froze. The objects could range from mundane to silly and scary, which leads the audience to question the pizza maker's sanity.

Headline Haiku

A news headline or story turned into a haiku. There could be a few of these rolled into one segment. Here are three examples of news stories turned into haiku's.

1. "Louisiana neighbors surprised by wandering zebra"

In the Bayou state
Zebra Zydeco runs free
Likes old place to pee

2. "Alligator caught trying to break into community pool in North Carolina"

Dry alligator
Broke in to swim in town pool
Got caught, what a fool

3. "Tiny crack disqualifies pumpkin thought to be largest in U.S."

The biggest pumpkin
Can't win with a tiny crack
But has seeds to snack

Celebrity Finstagram

Almost everyone has an Instagram account and some even have a "Finstagram", which is a secret second Instagram account. Every week we go sleuthing to bring you celebrity Finstagrams. This is a graphics heavy piece with lots of photoshop, but a ton for the audience to see. Here's an example of three celebrity Finstagram accounts.

1. NICHOLAS CAGE'S FINSTAGRAM

Name & Heading: Pickelas Beige (Avatar: Elvis with a pickle mustache)
"I'll be taking these Huggies and whatever cash ya got"
Selling Elvis memorabilia and whiskey

PHOTOS: All sorts of Elvis collectables and whiskey

2. OZZY OSBOURNE'S FINSTAGRAM

Name & Heading: The Gardener of Oz (Avatar: Emoji with round glasses)

"I don't even know who Ozzy is"

Please check out my gardening blog. Mum, I'm coming home.

PHOTOS: Flowers in cereal boxes

3. JK ROWLING'S FINSTAGRAM

Name & Heading: JJ Bowling (Avatar: Bowling ball with a Harry Potter scar)

"My favorite bowling lane is 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ "

Things that have nothing to do with magic

PHOTOS: Lots of Photoshops of JJ Bowling and all things related to bowling